WORKING PRESS

Pat Cici, the pro at Lido, is a gay, brassy, confident guy who unaccountably turns into the nervous husband type when his wife competes in a golf tournament. She's the former Jean Stupler, a tall, attractive brunette who comes from a family of links pros and can powder the ball.

"I hate to follow her around the course," says the brave hubby. "It scares the hell out of me." It needn't because Jean, a five-time former public links champ here in New York, is headed for glory in private club ranks. In her first try, Jean was runner-up to Maureen Orcutt in the recent Met Amateur Championships.
